an extending road

con+te

only one journey is inevitable—our journey down the road of life . . . this road is constantly expanding as we gain more experience and seek new opportunities . . . the direction of our road depends upon our individual initiative and goals . . . success and achievement are signs of a smooth road . . . we experience disappointment and failure when our road becomes rough . . . we try to avoid a crooked road which reveals our indecision and insecurity . . . straight roads are traversed by those of us who are confident and purposeful in our aims . . . occasionally we are confronted by setbacks or detours, but these will lead us to clearer paths . . . we are now traveling over a very important stretch in the road of life—our high school years . . . not only are paths of knowledge opened to us during this period, but also those of activity and achievement . . . with teachers, parents, and friends serving as guideposts, we strive to keep our roads straight and smooth . . . we look forward to the final bend in this road—graduation . . . during our high school years, we come to realize that we have many paths to explore which will lead us to self-discovery and to opportunities for new roads beyond high school.

STUDE

among the most pleasant memories of our journey through high school are the everyday incidents that are part of our school life . . . most of these moments are forgotten, but many form a lasting picture in our minds . . . laughter and disappointment, smiles and tears make up the usual school day . . . the clearing of the halls just before the bell rings . . . scurrying out of class for a hurried chat with friends . . . reading desks in study hall . . . cramming outside the door for a test . . . listening with mixed emotions to election results . . . borrowing an "emergency" dime for an apple . . . counting down the seconds of last period to rush and meet that "special" friend at our locker . . . insignificant at the time, these moments are vital experiences which bring us in personal contact with our fellow students . . . we should take advantage of our school life to gain greater understanding of ourselves and to realize the importance of everyday incidents along the road of life.

the first two years of high school are very important in determining the course through our senior year . . . sophomores must adjust to a new social and academic environment . . . juniors accept their responsibilities in the classroom and after-school activities which will prepare them for leadership in their senior year . . . underclassmen continually explore for new paths of opportunity and development . . . as they find these paths, they earn the respect of their fellow classmen, the seniors, and the faculty . . . underclassmen begin to lay the foundation of their senior year through achievement in sports, academics, and activities.

the junior year is a time of taking on more responsibility, maturing through many experiences, unifying as a class, and working hard for recognition and positions of leadership . . . confronted with decisions of vocations and colleges, juniors become more serious towards achievement in academic study . . . along with memorizing chemistry formulas and American history facts, they were awake through the night to complete their personal heritage and research papers . . . pride in displaying a class ring . . . straining mentally on the p.s.a.t. and n.m.s.q.t. tests . . . overreaching their goal and setting records on the magazine drive . . . excelling in intellectual achievement . . . packing every spare moment with fun and activity, the class of '68 is well on its way to a successful journey through its senior year.

journeying along their expanding roads, sophomores begin a new stretch—their high school career . . . they soon learn that high school means more independent study, more academic competition, and less hours of sleep . . . but on this road to realization they also learn that high school offers more opportunities for extracurricular activities and social life . . . this year's sophomore class met each new experience enthusiastically . . . from dissecting a worm or writing a proof to excelling in sports and activities, the class of '69 already proved their desire to develop unity, spirit, and friendliness.

band . . . talented, enthusiastic instrumentalists worked toward superior musicianship . . . raising crowds' spirits with precision and dancing drills on the gridiron . . . "teaberry shuffle" . . . "hang on, sloopy" . . . performing in enjoyable winter and spring concerts . . . able musicians earning high ratings at the solo and ensemble contest . . . representing our school with a fine performance at the band contest . . . displaying pride in their organization as they set records in the candy sales and other money-making projects toward new band uniforms . . . band teaches self-discipline and perseverance as each new piece of music is undertaken.

besides earning a letter or stripe and the admiration of their fellow students, athletes gain many important qualities that will benefit them throughout their journeys . . . as they strive for victory with individuals contributions to a unified team effort, they learn the true meaning of sportsmanship . . . they acquire self-discipline and self-control by keeping in top physical condition and maintaining keen mental alertness . . . whether in football, cross-country, basketball, wrestling, baseball, or track, athletes become outstanding when they learn to respect the abilities of other players and to welcome advice and suggestions for their own improvement . . . supported by loyal school spirit, an athlete gains satisfaction through individual and team triumph.

the 1966 j.v. football team had an outstanding season with their drive to "hit and punish" with authority . . . great team effort and a strong second team which kept the first string at their best were factors in winning the s.w.c. championship . . . the best games were the victories over rocky river and north olmsted, the pirate game marking the high point of the season . . . the attack was led by fine quarterbacking and a strong backfield . . . the success of this small, spirited team was attributed to coachability, aggressiveness, and a desire to be the best.

great team effort, desire, and improvement characterized this year's team under their new coach, mr. gary glenwright . . . only in the second year of existence, our cross-country team competed against some of the best teams in the state, such as john marshall, rocky river, and midpark . . . practices of up to ten miles of running for one afternoon prepared the boys for the rough two-mile races . . . their efforts were rewarded by a second place finish in the warrensville invitational and by finishing in the upper half of the field at st. joe's where chris morley again received a plaque for an outstanding performance.

loucks, k. flesch, r. shepple, j. rodman, d. tritton, k. gorman, b. quayle, c. furber, d. smith, d. short, j. smith.

an 82-64 victory over lakewood set the stage for this year's thrilling varsity basketball season . . . the surprising rockets won 14 straight victories before being upset by third-place avon lake . . . average points per game were 67 against 52.5 for bay's opponents . . . largest point spread was 43 in a devastating 89-46 victory over fairview park . . . an exciting overtime victory against upset-minded westlake, 56-52 . . . best game was standing-room-only victory north olmsted, 80-30, setting the stage for the first place battle in last game . . . leading for three quarters, but tiring against superior north olmsted height . . . never-say-die attitude in this losing battle earned championship respect for our second-place team . . . in the sectional tournaments, a spirited team lost by only 10 points to district semifinalist elyria . . . top scorer this year was all-scholastic senior bob quayle, averaging over 20 points per game . . . other starters were seniors rick shepple and john rodman, juniors dave tritton, dale short, and doug smith, and sophomore kirk gorman. These experienced underclassmen promise a fine season next year as they try to better this year's fine 15-3 record.

now we have come to the end of a very important stretch of our road—the journey through our high school years . . . but this is by no means a dead end, for our road of life is one of continual extension . . . our journey through high school life has led us to greater opportunities and goals for the future . . . these years have developed our characters and equipped us for progress and success in the future expansion of our roads . . . we will continue to endeavor for a straight and smooth path, but we will not be overcome by the occasional rough and crooked parts of our road . . . although we can never retravel any part of our high school journeys, we can mentally relive the moments of joy and sorrow, triumph and disappointment . . . gaining from the high school experiences which have matured us, we can make the progress of our future roads smoother and the paths of opportunity more extensive.
